A curious Palauan-American from California who is compassionate and passionate. Unifying experiences as a writer, booklover, and an educator for children, my approach is centered around the user and the target audience, crafting a plan to execute, and utilizing the creative skills I had developed to solve problems and drive innovation. Having the ability to plan around the target audience of an application allows me to create code best suited for them. My experiences as a writer and a booklover allows me to have that innate ability to grasp the audience's attention. In doing so, creating code efficiently will increase user activity.
